

FOOLING WITH WORDS

WITH BILL MOYERS

THE 1998 GERALDINE R. DODGE POETRY FESTIVAL

TEACHER'S GUIDE

THE GERALDINE R. DODGE POETRY FESTIVAL

The Geraldine R. Dodge Poetry Festival is the largest poetry event in North America. The Festival, held every other year, was inaugurated in 1986 by the Dodge Foundation to help poetry assume its rightful place in the center of our imaginative and emotional lives.

Situated in historic Waterloo Village in Northern New Jersey, the Festival offers four days of poetry readings and poetry-centered events—discussions, conversations, and workshops—for students, teachers, and the general public.

For more information, visit the Festival Web site at www.grdodge.org/poetry/, fax (973) 540-1211, call (973) 540-8443 ext.139, or write to Poetry Festival, Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation, 163 Madison Avenue, P.O. Box 1239, Morristown, NJ 07962-1239.

2000 Festival—September 21, 22, 23 & 24

"We have fallen into the place where everything is music. That's what the Festival feels like—we feel this vast interconnectedness. It's amazing that this many people can be really genuinely excited about fooling with words."

—Coleman Barks

"One thing I love about the Festival is seeing the thousands of high school kids trooping in, so excited about the possibility of other ways to live, about the choice that poets make to do something difficult, unlikely, a little bit out of the cultural mainstream."

—Mark Doty

"The great feature of the Festival is its generosity of spirit, its welcome to different factions in poetry, different schools of poetry, young and old. That demonstration of the democratic spirit is indicative of one of the most important revolutions in the whole history of modern poetry in this country."

—Stanley Kunitz

"The beautiful thing about being at the Festival is that it's like a carnival, and you're the ride. You can be a roller coaster, or whatever."

—Kurtis Lamkin

Dear Educator:

This is about something I think you will enjoy personally and find helpful in your work with students.

Fooling with Words is a PBS documentary special produced with young people in mind. We wanted them to see just how vital, compelling, and enjoyable poetry can be. So we took our cameras to the Geraldine R. Dodge Poetry Festival in Waterloo, New Jersey, to capture the excitement of "the Woodstock of Poetry." We covered the festival as if it were a sporting event, with cameras everywhere—on the poets as they performed; the audience as it watched, laughed, wept, and cheered; workshops where students and aspiring bards talked face-to-face with the poets about their craft and their lives.

The result is a film that will introduce your students to the power and pleasure of poetry in many guises—from the rhythmic cadences of Amira Baraka and Kurtis Lamkin (who accompanies his poems on the kora, the African ancestor of the harp) to the haunting evocations of Lorna Dee Cervantes and Shirley Geok-lin Lim, the puckish wit of Paul Muldoon, the spiritual power of Jane Hirshfield, the wry commentary by Deborah Garrison on the life of women in the workplace, and the moving remembrances of "Halley's Comet" by Stanley Kunitz, at 95 the dean of American poets.

This smorgasbord of contemporary American poetry comes at a timely moment. The New York Times says poetry is enjoying a resurgence in America. The Atlantic Monthly says, "the nation's hot romance with poetry shows no sign of cooling off." Esquire predicts poetry will be the pop-culture event at the opening of the new millennium. Volkswagen included poetry books as a "standard feature" in all its new cars during National Poetry Month, and poetry is being celebrated at events from the recent White House gathering of poets to poetry slams in smoky downtown bars.

Fooling with Words captures the spirit of this phenomenon. We hope you will tape the program and use the accompanying materials.

Sincerely,

Bill Moyers

PHOTO: DON PERDUE

SOUNDS OF POETRY—nine half hours of poems by and interviews with many of the poets featured in FOOLING WITH WORDS—will be available from PBS stations after the September 26, 1999 broadcast of the two-hour special. Please check with your local public television station for the availability and schedule of these programs. These are the poets included:

Amiri Baraka

Robert Pinsky

Marge Piercy

Coleman Barks

Lorna Dee Cervantes and

Shirley Geok-lin Lim

Stanley Kunitz

Jane Hirshfield

Lucille Clifton and

Mark Doty

Deborah Garrison

SOUNDS OF POETRY may be ordered from Films for the Humanities and Sciences, ordering information inside.

A list of the poems in SOUNDS OF POETRY can be found on the FOOLING WITH WORDS Web site www.wnet.org/foolingwithwords or www.pbs.org/foolingwithwords

INTRODUCTION

Since 1986, the restored nineteenth-century village of Waterloo, New Jersey, has hosted the largest poetry gathering in North America—the biennial Geraldine R. Dodge Poetry Festival. For four days, thousands of people gather to listen to, read, discuss, and celebrate poetry.

FOOLING WITH WORDS WITH BILL MOYERS captures the excitement of the 1998 Geraldine R. Dodge Poetry Festival. It features performances by and interviews with some of the most accomplished poets of our time.

BROADCAST: September 26, 1999 on PBS (check local listings)

HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

Preview the programs and read each poem carefully before making class assignments, as some poets may deal with potentially sensitive and/or disturbing subjects.

Decide which segments and/or specific poems to offer to your class, and use the time code on the folder to identify and cue up each segment. Remember: You can tape programs from FOOLING WITH WORDS or SOUNDS OF POETRY and use them in the classroom for one year after each broadcast.

Familiarize yourself with all Poet Cards, noting that some poets are presented on two sides of a Poet Card, others only on a single side. Designed for photocopying, these cards offer poems and a range of other resources for each poet represented: a photograph, a bio note, a statement relating to poetry or being a poet, an introductory question, several questions designed to stimulate discussion, and suggested follow-up activities.

Use quoted statements by each poet to spark discussion about this poet's perspective on poetry and/or about poetry in general. Much can be gained by choosing and comparing favorites, by discussing how each statement relates to that poet's poems, by discussing how a statement by one poet relates to the poems of another poet, or by assembling these statements into a collage.

Use the single, introductory question for each poet to help students enter a poem by reminding them that poetry connects directly to their own lives. For example, start the discussion of a poet by asking students to determine which poem the large-print, introductory question addresses. Follow the question as it goes into that poem and back out into life. Encourage ongoing reflection by asking students to make up their own introductory questions.

Stimulate imaginative experimentation and cross-fertilization by modifying, adapting, and re-applying Poet Card activities as your inclinations and your students' capacities suggest.

Consider the relationship of printed text to actual performance, including on-the-spot improvisation—as with Amiri Baraka, Coleman Barks, and Kurtis Lamkin.

Consult FOOLING WITH WORDS Online for additional poems, expanded statements about poetry, and a wide range of other program-related resources.

SPECIFIC SUGGESTIONS:

- 1) Enlarge statements by poets on the Poet Cards and post them around your classroom.
- 2) Let students choose poems to read aloud, then review how the poets actually perform these poems on the video.
- 3) Distribute copies of selected Poet Cards to small groups of students, and ask each group to define linkages among the poets and the poems.
- 4) Provide students with copies of the complete set of Poet Cards, and ask them to organize their own anthologies, according to their own principles.

A Note on Interdisciplinary Use

This FOOLING WITH WORDS Teacher's Guide can be used in classes in the arts and social studies as well as in English and literature classes. The poets in FOOLING WITH WORDS and THE SOUNDS OF POETRY represent different cultural perspectives, determined in part by differences in gender, age, and ethnic background. Their voices can spark interest in events, places, or historical periods and bring a human scale to large, abstract concepts. In addition to sharing these materials with colleagues teaching other subjects, many teachers regularly invite students to choose poets and poems relevant to their other courses of study.

SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY

- Baraka, Amiri. Funk Lore: New Poems, 1984-1995. Los Angeles: Littoral Press, 1996.
- _____. Translucency: The Selected Poems of Amiri Baraka/LeRoi Jones, 1961-1995. Edited by Paul Vangelisti. New York: Marsilio Publishers, 1995.
- _____. The LeRoi Jones/Amiri Baraka Reader. Edited by William J. Harris with Amiri Baraka. New York: Thunder's Mouth Press, 1991.
- _____. The Autobiography of LeRoi Jones. Chicago: Lawrence Hill Books, 1997.
- _____. Four Black Revolutionary Plays. New York: Marion Boyars, 1998.
- Barks, Coleman. Gourd Seed. Athens, Ga.: Maypop Books, 1993.
- _____. The Glance: Songs of Soul Meeting. Rumi Translations. New York: Viking, 1999.
- _____. The Illuminated Rumi. New York: Broadway, 1997.
- _____. The Essential Rumi. With John Moyne. San Francisco: Harper, 1995.
- _____. The Hand of Poetry: Five Mystic Poets of Persia: Selections from Sanai, Attar, Rumi, Saadi, and Hafiz. New York: Omega Press, 1993.
- Cervantes, Lorna Dee. From the Cables of Genocide: Poems on Love and Hunger. Houston, Tex.: Arte Público Press, 1991.
- _____. Emplumada. Pittsburgh: University of Pittsburgh Press, 1981.
- Clifton, Lucille. The Terrible Stories. Brockport, N.Y.: BOA Editions, 1996.
- _____. The Book of Light. Port Townsend, Wash.: Copper Canyon Press, 1993.
- _____. Quilting: Poems 1987-1990. Brockport, N.Y.: BOA Editions, 1991.
- _____. Next: New Poems. Brockport, N.Y.: BOA Editions, 1987.
- _____. Good Woman: Poems and a Memoir, 1969-1980. Brockport, N.Y.: BOA Editions, 1987.
- Doty, Mark. Sweet Machine. New York: HarperFlamingo, 1998.
- _____. Atlantis. New York: HarperPerennial, 1995.
- _____. My Alexandria. Urbana, Ill.: University of Illinois Press, 1993.
- _____. Heaven's Coast: A Memoir. New York: HarperCollins, 1997.
- Duhamel, Denise. The Star-Spangled Banner. Carbondale, Ill.: Southern Illinois University Press, 1999.
- _____. Kinky. Alexandria, Va.: Orchises Press, 1997.
- Garrison, Deborah. A Working Girl Can't Win and Other Poems. New York: Random House, 1998.
- Hirshfield, Jane. The Lives of the Heart. New York: HarperPerennial, 1997.
- _____. The October Palace. New York: HarperPerennial, 1994.
- _____. Of Gravity & Angels. Middletown, Conn.: Wesleyan University Press, 1988.
- _____. Nine Gates: Entering the Mind of Poetry. New York: HarperPerennial, 1997.
- Holman, Bob. Bob Holman's The Collect Call of the Wild. New York: Henry Holt, 1995.
- Kinnell, Galway. Imperfect Thirst. Boston: Houghton Mifflin, 1994.
- _____. Selected Poems. Boston: Houghton Mifflin, 1982.
- Kunitz, Stanley. Passing Through: The Later Poems, New and Selected. New York: Norton, 1995.
- _____. The Wellfleet Whale: And Companion Poems. Bronx, N.Y.: Sheep Meadow Press, 1984.
- _____. Interviews and Encounters with Stanley Kunitz. Edited by Stanley Moss. Bronx, N.Y.: Sheep Meadow Press, 1993.
- _____. ed. The Essential Blake. New York: Ecco Press, 1987.
- Lamkin, Kurtis. El Shabazz (CD). Charleston, S.C.: Jamboco Sound, 1998.
- _____. My Juju (CD). Charleston, S.C.: Jamboco Sound, 1995.
- _____. (Contributor) I Feel a Little Jumpy Around You. Edited by Naomi Shihab Nye and Paul B. Janeczko. Old Tappan, N.J.: Simon & Schuster, 1996.
- Lim, Shirley Geok-lin. What the Fortune Teller Didn't Say. Albuquerque, N.M.: West End Press, 1998.
- _____. Monsoon History: Selected Poems. London: Skoob Books, 1995.
- _____. Two Dreams: New and Selected Stories. New York: Feminist Press, 1997.
- _____. Among the White Moon Faces: An Asian-American Memoir of Homelands. New York: Feminist Press, 1996.
- Menashe, Samuel. Collected Poems. Orono, Maine: National Poetry Foundation/University of Maine at Orono, 1986.
- Merwin, W. S. The Folding Cliffs: A Narrative. New York: Knopf, 1998.
- _____. Selected Poems. New York: Atheneum, 1988.
- Muldoon, Paul. Hay. New York: Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 1998.
- _____. The Annals of Chile. New York: Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 1994.
- _____. The Prince of the Quotidian. Winston-Salem, N.C.: Wake Forest University Press, 1994.
- _____. Selected Poems, 1968-1986. New York: Ecco Press, 1987.
- Olds, Sharon. The Wellspring. New York: Knopf, 1996.
- _____. The Father. New York: Knopf, 1992.
- _____. The Gold Cell. New York: Knopf, 1987.
- _____. The Dead and the Living. New York: Knopf, 1984.
- Piercy, Marge. The Art of Blessing the Day: Poems With a Jewish Theme. New York: Knopf, 1999.
- _____. What Are Big Girls Made Of? New York: Knopf, 1997.
- _____. Mars and Her Children. New York: Knopf, 1992.
- _____. Circles on the Water: Selected Poems of Marge Piercy. New York: Knopf, 1982.
- _____. Parti-Colored Blocks for a Quilt. Ann Arbor, Mich.: University of Michigan Press, 1982.
- Pinsky, Robert. The Figured Wheel: New and Collected Poems, 1966-1996. New York: Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 1996.
- _____. The Want Bone. New York: Ecco Press, 1991.
- _____. History of My Heart. New York: Ecco Press, 1984.
- _____. An Explanation of America. Princeton, N.J.: Princeton University Press, 1979.
- _____. The Inferno of Dante: A New Verse Translation. New York: Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 1994.
- Weil, Joe. Fifteen Cinquains (for a rainy day or two). Manasquan, N.J.: Iniquity Press/Vendetta Books, 1999.

BUILDING A CORE HIGH SCHOOL POETRY COLLECTION

(Total approximate cost $625)

BASIC

(cost approximately $350)

GOOD BROWSING

- Songs from This Earth on Turtle's Back: American Indian Writing. Bruchac, Joseph, ed. Greenfield Center, N.Y.: Greenfield Review Press, 1983. ($10.95)
- The Forbidden Stitch: An Asian American Women's Anthology. Lim, Shirley Geok-lin, et al, eds. Corvallis, Oreg.: Calyx Books, 1989. ($16.95)
- The Top 500 Poems. Harmon, William, ed. New York: Columbia University Press, 1992. ($29.95)
- The Rag and Bone Shop of the Heart: A Poetry Anthology. Bly, Robert, James Hillman and Michael Meade, eds. New York: HarperCollins, 1993. ($17.00)
- No More Masks! An Anthology of Twentieth Century American Women's Poetry. Howe, Florence, ed. New York: HarperCollins, 1993. ($17.00)
- Unsettling America: An Anthology of Contemporary Multicultural Poetry. Gillan, Maria Mazziotti and Jennifer Gillan, eds. New York: Penguin Books, 1994. ($14.95)
- Every Shut Eye Ain't Asleep: An Anthology of Poetry by African Americans since 1945. Harper, Michael S., and Anthony Walton, eds. Boston: Little Brown, 1994. ($19.00)
- Paper Dance: 55 Latino Poets. Cruz, Victor Hernández, Lerou Quintana, and Virgil Suarez, eds. New York: Persea Books, 1995. ($14.00)
- Contemporary American Poetry. Poulin, A., Jr. ed. 6th ed. Boston: Houghton Mifflin, 1996. ($30.27)

POETRY OF DIVERSE CULTURES

- Another Republic: 17 European and South American Writers. Simic, Charles and Mark Strand, eds. New York: Ecco Press, 1989. ($12.95)
- The Same Sky: A Collection of Poems from around the World. Nye, Naomi Shihab. New York: Aladdin Paperbacks, 1996. ($17.00)
- The Vintage Book of Contemporary World Poetry. McClatchy, J. D., ed. New York: Vintage Books, 1996. ($15.00)
- East Window: The Asian Poems. Merwin, W. S., trans. Port Townsend, Wash.: Copper Canyon Press, 1998. ($16.00)

ABOUT POETRY

- Rose, Where Did You Get That Red? Teaching Great Poetry to Children. Koch, Kenneth. New York: Vintage Books, 1990. ($12.00)
- The Language of Life: A Festival of Poets. Moyers, Bill. (Haba, James, ed.) New York: Doubleday, 1996. ($18.95)
- The Sounds of Poetry: A Brief Guide. Pinsky, Robert. New York: Farrar, Straus & Giroux, 1998. ($16.00)

ABOUT WRITING POETRY

- The Poet's Pen: Writing Poetry with Middle and High School Students. Lies, Betty Bonham. Englewood, N.J.: Libraries Unlimited/Teacher Ideas Press, 1993. ($18.00)
- Poetry Everywhere: Teaching Poetry Writing in School and in the Community. Collom, Jack and Sheryl Noethe. New York: Teachers & Writers Collaborative, 1994. ($17.00)
- The Poet's Companion: A Guide to the Pleasures of Writing Poetry. Addonizio, Kim and Dorianne Laus. New York: W. W. Norton, 1997. ($13.00)
- Risking Intensity: Reading and Writing Poetry With High School Students. Michaels, Judith. Urbana, Ill.: National Council of Teachers of English, 1999. ($16.00)

EXPANDED

(cost approximately $150)

MORE GOOD BROWSING

- The Black Poets. Randall, Dudley, ed. New York: Bantam Books, 1985. ($6.99)
- Woman Who Has Sprouted Wings: Poems by Contemporary Latin American Women. Crow, Mary, ed. 2nd ed. Pittsburgh: Latin American Literary Review Press, 1988. ($13.95)
- New American Poets of the Nineties. Myers, Jack and Roger Weingarten, eds. Lincoln, Mass.: Godine, 1991. ($19.95)
- Modern American Poets: Their Voices and Visions. DiYanni, Robert, ed. 2nd ed. New York: McGraw-Hill, 1993. ($31.00)

MORE POETRY OF DIVERSE CULTURES

- 100 Poems From the Chinese. Rexroth, Kenneth, trans. New York: New Directions, 1971. ($9.95)
- Contemporary East European Poetry: An Anthology. George, Emery, ed. New York: Oxford University Press, 1993. ($35.00)
- The Essential Haiku: Versions of Basho, Buson and Issa. Hass, Robert, trans. New York: Ecco Press, 1995. ($15.00)
- Returning a Borrowed Tongue: Poems by Filipino and Filipino American Writers. Carbo,

Nick, ed. Minneapolis: Coffee House Press, 1996. ($14.95)

SUPPLEMENTARY

(cost approximately $125)

GOING DEEPER

- The Enlightened Heart: An Anthology of Sacred Poetry. Mitchell, Stephen, ed. New York: HarperCollins, 1993. ($13.00)
- Against Forgetting: Twentieth Century Poetry of Witness. Forché, Carolyn, ed. New York: W. W. Norton, 1993. ($23.95)
- Women in Praise of the Sacred: 43 Centuries of Spiritual Poetry by Women. Hirshfield, Jane, ed. New York: HarperCollins, 1995. ($13.50)
- News of the Universe: Poems of TwoFold Consciousness. Bly, Robert, ed. 2nd ed. San Francisco: Sierra Club Books, 1995. ($12.00)

MORE ABOUT POETRY

- How to Read a Poem and Fall in Love with Poetry. Hirsch, Edward. New York: Harcourt Brace, 1999. ($23.00)
- Western Wind: An Introduction to Poetry. Nims, John Frederick. 3rd ed. New York: McGraw-Hill, 1992. ($23.50)
- The Poet's Notebook: Excerpts from the Notebooks of 26 American Poets. Kuusisto, Stephen, Deborah Tall and David Weiss, eds. New York: W. W. Norton, 1997. ($13.00)
- Poets on Poetry Series. Various authors and editors. Ann Arbor, Mich.: University of Michigan Press. (An outstanding anthology series of interviews and essays by a wide range of contemporary poets.)

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This guide was produced by

Thirteen·wnet

Educational Resources Center
Ruth Ann Burns, Director

PUBLISHER: Robert A. Miller
EDITOR: David Reisman, Ed.D.
DESIGN: B. T. Whitehill WRITERS: James Haba, Richard Kelso
PERMISSIONS EDITOR: Christina L. Draper
COPY EDITOR AND PROOFREADER:
Sue Young Wilson
EDITORIAL ASSISTANT: Kimberly Yuen

COVER PHOTOGRAPHY: Lynn Saville

ADVISERS:

James Haba, Poetry Director,
Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation

Lois Harrod, Voorhees High School,
Glen Gardner, New Jersey

Peter E. Murphy, Atlantic City High School, Atlantic City, New Jersey

Suzanne Snyder Carroll, Hopewell Valley Central High School,
Pennington, New Jersey

Ellen June Wright, Teaneck High School, Teaneck, New Jersey

Special thanks to the following teachers:
Donald Delo, Peter Herzberg, Betty B. Lies,
Judy Michaels, and Therese Mattil

Special thanks to the Geraldine R. Dodge Poetry Program and Festival staff:
Martin Farawell (Poetry Coordinator), Renée Ashley and Wendy Baron (Assistant Poetry Coordinators), Natalie Gerber and Erica Mosner (Assistant Festival Coordinators), and Egan Davson (Program Assistant).

FOOLING WITH WORDS WITH BILL MOYERS

PRODUCER: Dominique Lasseur
DIRECTOR: Catherine Tatge
EDITOR: Joel Katz

DIRECTOR OF PHOTOGRAPHY: Joel Shapiro
PROGRAM CONSULTANT: James Haba
ASSOCIATE PRODUCER: Dahvi Waller
DIRECTOR OF PRODUCTION: Felice Firestone
DIRECTOR OF SPECIAL PROJECTS:
Deborah Rubenstein
EXECUTIVE PRODUCERS:
Judy Doctoroff O'Neill and Judith Davidson Moyers
EXECUTIVE EDITORS:
Judith Davidson Moyers and Bill Moyers.

Funding for FOOLING WITH WORDS WITH BILL MOYERS is provided by the Herb Alpert Foundation, The John D. and Catherine T.
MacArthur Foundation, and Mutual of America Life Insurance Company.

Funding for this guide is provided by the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation.

ORDERING INFORMATION

The companion book to the series,
FOOLING WITH WORDS WITH BILL
MOYERS, published by William Morrow and Company, is available for $20 wherever books are sold. Videocassettes of FOOLING WITH WORDS, the two-hour special, and SOUNDS OF POETRY, the nine half-hour programs, will be available through Films for the Humanities and Sciences by calling 1-800-257-5126 or by visiting their Web site, www.films.com

TIME GRID

Lucille Clifton

"we are running" 00:05-00:30

Amiri Baraka

"Monday in B Flat" 00:43-00:53

Coleman Barks

interview segment 01:13-01:26

Kurtis Lamkin

interview segment 02:01-02:11
"jump mama" 02:13-04:50

Stanley Kunitz

interview segment 04:59-05:15

Jane Hirshfield

"The Poet" 05:17-06:31
interview segment 06:40-07:52
"The Envoy" 07:53-09:10
interview segment 09:14-09:52

Mark Doty

"Messiah (Christmas Portions)" 11:06-15:00

Lucille Clifton

"adam thinking" 16:00-16:35
"eve thinking" 16:38-17:10

Mark Doty

interview segment 17:17-17:45
"New Dog" 18:00-20:25
interview segment 20:40-21:56
"Golden Retrievals" 22:50-24:03

Mark Doty and Lucille Clifton dialogue 24:13-24:45

Lucille Clifton

"won't you celebrate with me" 24:45-25:28

Robert Pinsky

interview segment 25:36-27:24
"To Television" 27:24-29:32
interview segment 29:39-30:25
q&a with students 30:26-31:05

Joe Weil

from "Painting the Christmas Trees" 31:27-31:54

James Haba

interview segment 31:55-32:24

David Gonzalez

"Cross Bronx Expressway" 32:25-33:39

Amiri Baraka

interview segment 33:40-34:10
"Wise, Why's, Y'z (Africa Section)" 34:11-35:56
interview segment 35:58-36:33
"Wise, Why's, Y'z (Africa Section)" 36:34-38:37

Marge Piercy

interview segment 38:55-39:20
from "The chuppah" 39:22-41:09

Stanley Kunitz

"The Round" 42:18-44:05
interview segment 44:16-45:02
"Halley's Comet" 45:19-47:35
"Touch Me" 47:45-49:50

Kurtis Lamkin

"those crazy beach girls" (improvised version) 49:52-53:17

Marge Piercy

from "What are big girls made of?" 56:06-57:35
interview segment
53:23-53:40 and 55:15-56:03
from "What are big girls made of?" 56:06-57:35
interview segment 57:42-58:36
from "For strong women" 58:40-59:47

Coleman Barks

from "Today, like every other day" 1:00:00-1:00:21
interview segment 1:00:50-1:01:27
"Jars of Spring Water" 1:02:35-1:04:25
"Little Miss Muffett" (by Briny Barks) 1:04:57-1:05:07
interview segment 1:05:42-1:06:12
"Justice" 1:05:23-1:05:41
from "New Year's Day Nap" 1:06:15-1:07:34
interview segment 1:07:34-1:08:23

Robert Pinsky

"ABC" 1:08:36-1:09:13
interview segment 1:09:20-1:10:18

Bob Holman

from "I've Got a Rock 'n Roll Mythology"
1:10:19-1:10:34

Denise Duhamel

from "Kinky" 1:10:35-1:10:55

Samuel Menashe

"Salt and Pepper" 1:10:58-1:11:20

James Haba

interview segment 1:11:24-1:11:50

Deborah Garrison

"Please Fire Me" 1:11:58-1:12:43
interview segment 1:12:48-1:13:32
"An Idle Thought" 1:13:34-1:15:00

Lucille Clifton

"oh absalom my son my son"
1:15:35-1:16:09

Sharon Olds

"The Clasp" 1:16:13-1:17:40

Mark Doty

interview segment 1:17:49-1:18:33

W.S. Merwin

"Yesterday" 1:18:35-1:20:20

Galway Kinnell

"After Making Love We Hear Footsteps"
1:20:28-1:21:51

Paul Muldoon

interview segment 1:21:57-1:22:26
"Symposium" 1:23:10-1:24:45
interview segment 1:24:48-1:25:27
"The Sightseers" 1:27:51-1:29:10

Kurtis Lamkin

"yo body" 1:29:11-1:30:16
interview segment 1:30:16-1:31:02
"yo body" 1:31:03-1:32:06
interview segment 1:32:08-1:33:05
"the million man march" 1:33:10-1:35:43

Stanley Kunitz

interview segment 1:35:49-1:36:24

Lorna Dee Cervantes

"Summer Ends Too Soon" 1:37:01-1:38:10
interview segment 1:38:15-1:39:15
"Poet's Progress" 1:39:16-1:42:18

Shirley Geok-lin Lim

"Riding into California" 1:42:40-1:43:44
interview segment 1:43:50-1:44:30
"Pantoun for Chinese Women"
1:45:33-1:47:58
interview segment 1:48:02-1:48:38

Coleman Barks

from "Where Everything Is Music" 1:48:41-1:49:43
interview segment 1:49:45-1:51:10
"I See My Beauty in You" 1:51:14-1:54:06

A Time Grid for the poems from SOUNDS OF POETRY can be found on FOOLING WITH WORDS Online, www.wnet.org/foolingwithwords

Amiri Baraka

FOOLING
WITH WORDS
WITH BILL MOYERS

"I believe you have to be true to people.
You have to be writing something that people understand but, at the same time, something that's profound enough to have meaning past, say, the six o'clock news."

Born in 1934 in Newark, New Jersey, Amiri Baraka (Le Roi Jones) has international stature as a poet, dramatist, essayist, and political activist. Associated with the Beats in the 1950s, he became a leader in the Black Arts Movement in the 1960s. Much of his work considers the political situation of people of color in capitalist America.

Wise I

WHY's (Nobody Knows
The Trouble I Seen)
Trad.

If you ever find yourself, some where lost and surrounded by enemies who won't let you speak in your own language who destroy your statues & instruments, who ban your oom boom ba boom
then you are in trouble deep trouble they ban your oom boom ba boom
you in deep deep trouble humph!

probably take you several hundred years to get out!

PHOTO: LYNN SAVILLE

Monday in B Flat

I can pray
all day & God wont come.

But if I call 911
The Devil
Be here in a minute!

Who would ban your
"oom boom ba boom"?
Why?

Baraka's Poetry Reading as Jazz Performance

Like a jazz musician, Amiri Baraka generally begins with a set text but allows himself liberty to improvise freely in response to the moment and his immediate context. In addition to deleting from and adding to his printed text, even dropping or repeating whole stanzas, he also sometimes performs long passages which have no direct print analogues. While his allegiance is always to the live poem happening now, he bases that living poem on dedicated practice and preparation.

"Wise, Why's, Y'z (Africa Section)" includes excerpts from published poems and improvised material. A complete transcript showing these distinctions appears on FOOLING WITH WORDS Online.

Amiri Baraka

from Wise, Why's, Y'z (Africa Section)

The chains & dark dark & dark, if there was "light" it meant Ghoosts

Rotting family we ghost ate three

A people flattened & chained & bathed & degraded in their own hysterical waste

below beneath under neath deep down up under grave cave pit lower & deeper weeping miles below skyscraper gutters

Blue blood hole into which blueness is the terror, massacre, torture & original western holocaust

Slavery

We were slaves

Slaves

Slaves

...

We were

Slaves

...

They threw our lives
 a way

Beneath the violent philosophy of primitive cannibals

Primitive
Violent
Steam driven
Cannibals*

...

It's my brother, my sister.
At the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean there's a railroad made of human bones.
 Black ivory
 Black ivory

...

Think of Slavery
 as Educational!

*from "So The King Sold the Farmer #39" from "Y The Link Will Not Always Be "Missing" #40"

QUESTIONS

1. Although "Wise I" directly addresses the history of African Americans, its language remains open to broader application. What else could it address?
2. If we "Think of Slavery / as / Educational," what can slavery teach us?
3. How do these three poems reflect or comment upon one another? How is each unique?

ACTIVITIES

1. Consider what happens when Baraka repeats, with subtle variations, the word "slave." Try to do something similar with a word that carries strong feeling for you.
2. Develop a chant of your own, using percussive rhythm.
3. Research the history of slavery, focusing on its practice: in North America, in your state, in your town, or in your family. Report on your research, in prose or in poetry.
4. Make an object, mural, dance, or piece of music that expresses the Middle Passage as portrayed in "Wise, Why's, Y'z (Africa Section)."

"Wise I" and sections of "Wise, Why's, Y'z (Africa Section)," including excerpts from "So the King Sold the Farmer #39" and "Y the Link Will Not Always Be 'Missing' #40" from TRANSBLUESENCY, The Selected Poems of Amiri Baraka/LeRoi Jones (1961-1995), reprinted by permission of Sterling Lord Literistic, Inc. Copyright by Amiri Baraka.
"Monday in B-Flat" by Amiri Baraka, from FUNKLORE: New Poems, 1984-1995, Littoral Press, Los Angeles. Reprinted by permission of Sterling Lord Literistic, Inc. Copyright by Amiri Baraka.

Coleman Barks

FOOLING WITH WORDS
WITH BILL MOYERS

"I like both translating Rumi and writing my own poems. But in one, I have to disappear—with Rumi. In the other, I have to get in the way—get my personality and my delights and my shame into the poem."

In 1976 Coleman Barks began translating the poems of Jelaluddin Rumi, a thirteenth-century Sufi mystic, a poet as famous in the Islamic world as Shakespeare is in the West. He has since become the primary translator bringing Rumi's poems into contemporary English. Born in Tennessee in 1937, he now lives in Athens, Georgia.

Where Everything Is Music

Don't worry about saving these songs!
And if one of our instruments breaks,
it doesn't matter.

We have fallen into the place
where everything is music.

The strumming and the flute notes rise into the atmosphere, and even if the whole world's harp should burn up, there will still be hidden instruments playing.

So the candle flickers and goes out.
We have a piece of flint, and a spark.

This singing art is sea foam.
The graceful movements come from a pearl somewhere on the ocean floor.

Poems reach up like spindrift and the edge of driftwood along the beach, wanting!

They derive from a slow and powerful root that we can't see.

Stop the words now.
Open the window in the center of your chest, and let the spirits fly in and out.

by Jelaluddin Rumi, translated by Coleman Barks

PHOTO: LYNN SAVILLE

Today, like every other day, we wake up empty and frightened. Don't open the door to the study and begin reading. Take down a musical instrument.

Let the beauty we love be what we do.
There are hundreds of ways to kneel and kiss the ground.

by Jelaluddin Rumi, translated by Coleman Barks

How fully is the beauty
you love what you do?

Coleman Barks

Jars of Springwater

Jars of springwater are not enough anymore. Take us down to the river!

The face of peace, the sun itself.
No more the slippery cloudlike moon.

Give us one clear morning after another and the one whose work remains unfinished, who is our work as we diminish, idle, though occupied, empty, and open.

by Jelaluddin Rumi, translated by Coleman Barks

from New Year's Day Nap

Fiesta Bowl on low.
My son lying here on the couch on the "Dad" pillow he made for me in the Seventh Grade. Now a sophomore at Georgia Southern, driving back later today, he sleeps with his white top hat over his face.

I'm a dancin' fool.

Twenty years ago, half the form
he sleeps within came out of nowhere with a million micro-lemmings who all died but one piercer of membrane, specially picked to start a brainmaking, egg-drop soup, that stirred two sun and moon centers for a new-painted sky in the tiniest ballroom imaginable.

Now he's rousing, six feet long, turning on his side. Now he's gone.

"New Year's Day Nap" from GOURD SEED by Coleman Barks, © 1993 by Coleman Barks. Used by arrangement with Maypop Books.
"Today, like every other day" and "Where Everything Is Music" from THE ESSENTIAL RUMI, Translated by Coleman Barks with John Moyne, A.J. Arberry and Reynold Nicholson. © 1995 by Coleman Barks. Used by arrangement with Threshold Books.
"Jars of Spring Water" from The Glance: Rumi's Songs of Soul Meeting by Coleman Barks, translation and introduction, translation © 1999 by Coleman Barks. Used by permission of Viking Penguin, a division of Penguin Putnam, Inc.

QUESTIONS

1. What qualities of "Jars of Springwater" suggest that its translator was successful in disappearing?
2. What qualities of the passage from "New Year's Day Nap" suggest that Coleman Barks was successful in getting his personality, delights, and shame into the poem?
3. Why do we fall "into the place / where everything is music"? Why don't we climb up to that place?

ACTIVITIES

1. Translate something from another language or from another medium of expression and concentrate on trying to disappear from the process of translation.
2. Write something or make something—a picture, a dance, a sculpture—in which you deliberately let yourself "get in the way."
3. In the program Coleman Barks says, "When you're in a place where music is, you can say things over and over and over." With music as a background, say something over and over, as the music invites. With others, let each person repeat his or her own language to the same music. Discuss what you learn about the rhythm of words.
4. Research the life and work of Jelaluddin Rumi and Sufi spiritual traditions. Report on your research or create a display (visual or aural) that allows others to experience some part of what you learned.

Lorna Dee Cervantes

-
- “ When you grow up as I did—a Chican-India in a barrio, in a Mexican neighborhood in California, welfare class—you’re not expected to speak. You’re ignored. You’re something in the periphery, emptying garbage cans or washing plates. You’re not expected to speak, much less write.”

Poet’s Progress

for Sandra Cisneros

I haven’t been much of anywhere,
books my only voyage, crossed no bodies of water, seen anything other than trees change, birds take shape—like the rare Bee Hummingbird that once hovered over the promise of salsa in my garden: a fur feathered vision from Cuba in Boulder, a wetback, stowaway, refugee,
farther from home than me.
Now, snow spatters its foreign starch across the lawn gone crisp with freeze. I know nothing tropical survives long in this season. I pull the last leeks from the frozen earth, smell their slender tubercular lives, stand in the sleet whiteout of December: roots draw in, threads of relatives expand while solitude, the core, that slick-headed fist of self, is cool as my dog’s nose and pungent with resistance. Now when the red-bellied woodpecker calls his response to a California owl, now, when the wound transformer in the womb slackens, and I wait for potential: all the lives I have yet to name,

all my life
I have willed into being alive and brittle with the icy past. And it’s enough now, listening, counting the unknown arachnids and hormigas who share my love of less sweeping. For this is what I wanted, come to, left alone with anything but the girlhood horrors, the touching, the hungry leaden meltdown of the hours.
Or the future—a round negation, black suction of the heart’s conception. Save me from a stupid life! I prayed.
Leave me anything but a stupid life.
And that’s poetry.

.....

Born in San Francisco’s Mission district of Native American and Mexican ancestry, Lorna Dee Cervantes discovered Shakespeare and the English Romantic poets in the houses her mother cleaned. As an adult, she has worked to put into language the once-word-less histories of Mexican Americans and especially Chican-Indians. She teaches at the University of Colorado at Boulder.

PHOTO: LYNN SAVILLE

“Poet’s Progress” by Lorna Dee Cervantes. © 1997 by Lorna Dee Cervantes. Reprinted by permission of Lorna Dee Cervantes.

QUESTIONS

1. In “Poet’s Progress” Lorna Dee Cervantes describes the course of her life as a poet. Where has she been? Where is she going?
2. What do the animals and plants in “Poet’s Progress” tell us about the poet at the center of the poem?
3. According to “Poet’s Progress,” what is poetry? What is “a stupid life”?
4. What effects does the poet achieve by describing a Bee Hummingbird as “a wetback, stowaway, refugee”?

ACTIVITIES

1. Keep a journal of your encounters with animals and plants, of all sorts. Note how these encounters stimulate or reflect your feelings and ideas.
2. Write your own “Poet’s Progress” about yourself or a poet you admire.
3. Create a bulletin board entitled “And that’s poetry.” Let everyone contribute something—a drawing, a photograph, a phrase, a poem, etc.—until it is entirely covered.

What do you risk in praying for “anything but / a stupid life”?

Deborah Garrison

.....

"I need to feel that the language in my poems is alive, in the sense of talking on the phone to a friend, sharing gossip."

Please Fire Me

Here comes another alpha male,
and all the other alphas are snorting and pawing, kicking up puffs of acrid dust

while the silly little hens clatter back and forth on quivering claws and raise a titter about the fuss.

Here comes another alpha male—
a man's man, a dealmaker, holds tanks of liquor,
charms them pantsless at lunch:

I've never been sicker.
Do I have to stare into his eyes and sympathize? If I want my job
I do. Well I think I'm through with the working world, through with warming eggs and being Zenlike in my detachment from all things Ego.

I'd like to go somewhere else entirely,
and I don't mean Europe.

.....

Father, R.I.P., Sums Me Up at Twenty-Three

She has no head for politics, craves good jewelry, trusts too readily, marries too early. Then one by one she sends away her friends and stands apart, smug sapphire, her answer to everything a slender zero, a silent shrug—and every day still hears me say she'll never be pretty.

Instead she reads novels, instead her belt matches her shoes. She is master of the condolence letter, and knows how to please a man with her mouth:

Good. Nose too large, eyes too closely set, hair not glorious blonde, not her mother's red,

nor the glossy black her younger sister has,
the little raven I loved best.

.....

Born in Ann Arbor, Michigan, in 1965, Deborah Garrison joined the editorial staff of The New Yorker magazine after graduating from Brown University. The poems in her first collection, A Working Girl Can't Win, juxtapose our working and personal realities with honesty and humor. She lives in Montclair, New Jersey.

PHOTO: LYNN SAVILLE

QUESTIONS

1. In "Please Fire Me," the poet talks about people as if they were particular kinds of animals. What does her choice of animals suggest about her attitude toward her situation? About her attitude toward herself?
2. What might have led Deborah Garrison to write "Father, R.I.P. . . ." Explain why you would or would not write such a poem.

ACTIVITIES

1. Based on what Deborah Garrison describes in her poem "Please Fire Me," write new "rules for the workplace" or "rules for the world."
2. Suppose you were Deborah Garrison's boss or coworker. What would you do after reading "Please Fire Me"? Describe or role-play the conversation you would have with her.

What makes you want "to go / somewhere else entirely"?

"Please Fire Me" and "Father, R.I.P., Sums Me Up at Twenty-Three" from A Working Girl Can't Win by Deborah Garrison, © 1998 by Deborah Garrison. Reprinted by permission of Random House, Inc.

Lucille Clifton

FOOLING
WITH WORDS
WITH BILL MOYERS

"What they call you is one thing.
What you answer to is something else."

Self-taught, Lucille Clifton uses plain language to explore life's complexities and to affirm the spirit's endurance. Recently named a Chancellor of the Academy of American Poets, she has served on faculties of universities across the country and is currently Distinguished Professor of Humanities at St. Mary's College of Maryland.

PHOTO: LYNN SAVILLE

adam thinking

she stolen from my bone is it any wonder i hunger to tunnel back inside desperate to reconnect the rib and clay and to be whole again

some need is in me struggling to roar through my mouth into a name this creation is so fierce i would rather have been born

eve thinking

it is wild country here brothers and sisters coupling claw and wing groping one another

i wait
while the clay two-foot rumbles in his chest searching for language to call me but he is slow tonight as he sleeps i will whisper into his mouth

our names

Who have you turned yourself from,
and toward, at once?

Lucille Clifton

won't you celebrate with me
what i have shaped into a kind of life? i had no model.
born in babylon
both nonwhite and woman
what did i see to be except myself?
i made it up here on this bridge between starshine and clay,
my one hand holding tight my other hand; come celebrate with me that everyday something has tried to kill me and has failed.

oh absalom my son my son

even as i turned myself from you i longed to hold you oh my wild haired son

running in the wilderness away from me from us into a thicket you could not foresee

if you had stayed
i feared you would kill me if you left i feared you would die

oh my son my son what does the Lord require

QUESTIONS

1. In "won't you celebrate with me," Lucille Clifton says she had "no model" when she was growing up. How, then, did she become who she is?
2. Lucille Clifton uses biblical titles in three of these poems—"adam thinking," "eve thinking," and "oh absalom my son my son." Create alternative titles for these poems. What would you gain or lose by eliminating the biblical allusions?
3. Listen to the words Lucille Clifton emphasizes when she reads "adam thinking" and "eve thinking." How does your listening experience differ from your reading experience?

ACTIVITIES

1. Choose something about yourself that you would like others to celebrate with you. Create an invitation in words or pictures that expresses what it is you're celebrating and why.
2. Do research in the library to find out more about who Absalom was and what the name has come to mean in modern times. If there is an "Absalom" in your life or in the life of someone you know, think of what you would like to say to him or her. Express yourself in any medium you like.
3. Choose two figures from history, mythology, fiction, movies, or television who have a relationship with each other. What secret or surprising things might each think about the other? Develop your own scenario any way you like—for example, in poetry, as a cartoon or comic strip, photo essay, two monologues, a dialogue, or pantomime.

"adam thinking" and "eve thinking" © 1991 by Lucille Clifton. Reprinted from QUILTING: POEMS 1987-1990 with the permission of BOA Editions, Ltd.

"won't you celebrate with me" from The book of light © 1993 by Lucille Clifton. Reprinted by permission of Copper Canyon Press, Post Office Box 271, Port Townsend, WA 98368.

"oh absalom my son my son," © 1996 by Lucille Clifton. Reprinted from THE TERRIBLE STORIES with the permission of BOA Editions, Ltd.

Mark Doty

FOOLING
WITH WORDS
WITH BILL MOYERS

New Dog

Jimi and Tony can't keep Dino, their cocker spaniel;
Tony's too sick,
the daily walks more pressure than pleasure, one more obligation that can't be met.

And though we already have a dog, Wally wants to adopt, wants something small and golden to sleep next to him and lick his face.
He's paralyzed now
from the waist down,

whatever's ruining him moving upward, and we don't know how much longer he'll be able to pet a dog. How many men want another attachment, just as they're leaving the world?

Wally sits up nights and says, I'd like some lizards, a talking bird, some fish. A little rat.

So after I drive to Jimi and Tony's in the Village and they meet me at the door and say,
We can't go through with it,

"The poet's craft—love of the sheer physical pleasures of language: its sonics, its textures, its rhythms—is an enormous ally."

Born in 1953 in Maryville, Tennessee, Mark Doty explores our preoccupation with the past and the future and encourages us to live more in the present. Central to his work are animals and his concern for the need to cope nobly and gracefully with what is beyond our control. He teaches at the University of Houston.

*we can't give up our dog,
I drive to the shelter
—just to look—and there is Beau: bounding and practically boundless, one brass concatenation of tongue and tail, unmediated energy,
too big, wild,*

perfect. He not only licks Wally's face but bathes every irreplaceable inch of his head, and though Wally can no longer feed himself he can lift his hand, and bring it to rest on the rough gilt flanks when they are,

for a moment, still.
I have never seen a touch
so deliberate.
It isn't about grasping;
the hand itself seems almost blurred now, softened, though tentative only because so much will must be summoned, such attention brought to the work—which is all he is now, this gesture toward the restless splendor, the unruly, the golden,

the animal, the new.

Golden Retrievals

Fetch? Balls and sticks capture my attention seconds at a time. Catch? I don't think so.
Bunny, tumbling leaf, a squirrel who's—oh joy—actually scared. Sniff the wind, then

I'm off again: muck, pond, ditch, residue of any thrillingly dead thing. And you?
Either you're sunk in the past, half our walk, thinking of what you can never bring back,

or else you're off in some fog concerning —tomorrow, is that what you call it? My work:
to unsnare time's warp (and woof!), retrieving, my haze-headed friend, you. This shining bark,

a Zen master's bronzy gong, calls you here, entirely, now: bow-wow, bow-wow, bow-wow.

What calls you here, entirely, now?

Mark Doty

from Messiah (Christmas Portions)

Who'd have thought they'd be so good? Every valley, proclaims the solo tenor,
(a sleek blonde

I've seen somewhere before —the liquor store?) shall be exalted, and in his handsome mouth the word is lifted and opened into more syllables than we could count, central ah

dilated in a baroque melisma, liquefied; the pour of voice seems to make the unplanned landscape the text predicts the Lord will heighten and tame.

This music demonstrates what it claims:
glory shall be revealed. If art's acceptable evidence, mustn't what lies behind the world be at least as beautiful as the human voice?

The tenors lack confidence, and the soloists, half of them anyway, don't have the strength to found the mighty kingdoms

these passages propose
—but the chorus, all together, equals my burning clouds,
and seems itself to burn,

commingled powers
deeded to a larger, centering claim.
These aren't anyone we know;
choiring dissolves familiarity in an up-pouring rush which will not rest, will not, for a moment, be still.

Aren't we enlarged by the scale of what we're able to desire? Everything, the choir insists,

might flame;
inside these wrappings burns another, brighter life, quickened, now,

by song: hear how it cascades, in overlapping, lapidary waves of praise? Still time.
Still time to change.

QUESTIONS

1. In "Messiah (Christmas Portions)," Mark Doty says, "Who'd have thought / they'd be so good?" Describe an event in which you or someone you know was suddenly or beautifully transformed—such as in a concert, play, sports event, or dance. Were you surprised? Why? What did you learn about yourself or the other person?
2. Doty writes, "Aren't we enlarged / by the scale of what we're able / to desire?" List five things you most desire. List five things someone you know well desires. How do our desires define us—make us seem smaller or larger?
3. Something that at first seemed crazy—writing a poem from a dog's point of view—eventually produced "Golden Retrievals." Describe something that you at first thought was crazy but that turned out to have a surprising result.

ACTIVITIES

1. Choose an animal who could dictate something to you. What would the animal say? Include your observations of some of the animal's characteristics as well as its words. What do you think you might learn from the animal?
2. Choose a moment in time—right now or some time in the past. Pretend you've taken a three-dimensional photo of the moment. Describe as much as you can about the moment, including physical descriptions, feelings, and ideas. What would you change to make the moment more vivid?
3. Both Mark and Jimi experienced their partner's illness due to AIDS. Their dogs, Beau and Dino, helped the ill partners feel better. Create a poster that helps people become aware of AIDS and that suggests possible things they can do to help people who have this disease.

Jane Hirshfield

.....
"I feel like I am in the service of the poem. The poem isn't something I make. The poem is something I serve."
.....

The Poet

She is working now, in a room not unlike this one, the one where I write, or you read. Her table is covered with paper. The light of the lamp would be tempered by a shade, where the bulb's single harshness might dissolve, but it is not, she has taken it off. Her poems? I will never know them, though they are the ones I most need. Even the alphabet she writes in I cannot decipher. Her chair— Let us imagine whether it is leather or canvas, vinyl or wicker. Let her have a chair, her shadeless lamp, the table. Let one or two she loves be in the next room. Let the door be closed, the sleeping ones healthy. Let her have time, and silence, enough paper to make mistakes and go on.

Which animals have signaled unknown openings in your life?

"The Poet" from THE LIVES OF THE HEART by Jane Hirshfield, © 1997 by Jane Hirshfield. Reprinted by permission of HarperCollins Publishers, Inc.
"The Envoy" © 1998 by Jane Hirshfield first appeared in the magazine Blue Sofa and also can be found in THE BEST AMERICAN POETRY, edited by Robert Bly, published by Scribners, 1999. Used by permission of the author.

PHOTO: LYNN SAVILLE

The Envoy

One day in that room, a small rat.
Two days later, a snake.

Who, seeing me enter, whipped the long stripe of his body under the bed,
then curled like a docile house-pet.

I don't know how either came or left.
Later, the flashlight found nothing.

For a year I watched as something—terror? happiness? grief?— entered and then left my body.

Not knowing how it came in,
Not knowing how it went out.

It hung where words could not reach it.
It slept where light could not go.
Its scent was neither snake nor rat, neither sensualist nor ascetic.

There are openings in our lives of which we know nothing.

Through them
the belled herds travel at will, long-legged and thirsty, covered with foreign dust.

FOOLING WITH WORDS

WITH BILL MOYERS

Born in New York City and educated at Princeton, Jane Hirshfield has lived in Northern California for the past twenty-five years. A student of Zen and a great woman poet of spirituality, love, and the natural world, she writes with plain reverence of the heart and mind, broadening our awareness of the rich currents of our daily life.

QUESTIONS

1. Why do you think the poet in "The Poet" prefers a shadeless lamp?
2. What else, besides "enough paper to make mistakes and go on," does the person writing about the poet in "The Poet" want her to have? Why?
3. What is an "envoy"? How does the small rat or snake of "The Envoy" open the way for the "belled herds"? Why are these herds "long-legged," "thirsty," and "covered with foreign dust"?

ACTIVITIES

1. With a group, design and arrange, as if for the stage, the scene described in "The Poet." Take turns directing someone playing the poet. Take turns playing the poet. During rehearsals, decide how long each version of the play will be. Introduce each performance with a reading of the poem.
2. Create a mural presenting the experiences described in "The Envoy." Do this alone or with a group. If you do this with a group, consult first on the images everyone agrees should be part of the mural. Discuss how these images will relate to each other.

Paul Muldoon

“Poetry begins with little glimmers—the sense that there might be an interaction between two things, two often quite unlike things that come together in a metaphor or an image.”

Symposium

You can lead a horse to water but you can't make it hold its nose to the grindstone and hunt with the hounds. Every dog has a stitch in time. Two heads? You've been sold one good turn. One good turn deserves a bird in the hand.

A bird in the hand is better than no bread. To have your cake is to pay Paul. Make hay while you can still hit the nail on the head. For want of a nail the sky might fall.

People in glass houses can't see the wood for the new broom. Rome wasn't built between two stools. Empty vessels wait for no man.

A hair of the dog is a friend indeed. There's no fool like the fool who's shot his bolt. There's no smoke after the horse is gone.

What story has made the context of its telling unforgettable to you?

“Symposium” from Hay by Paul Muldoon, © 1998 by Paul Muldoon. Reprinted by permission of Farrar, Straus & Giroux, Inc.
“The Sightseers” from Quoof by Paul Muldoon, © 1983 by Paul Muldoon. Reprinted by permission of Wake Forest University Press.

FOOLING WITH WORDS

WITH BILL MOYERS

QUESTIONS

1. Look up the definition of “symposium.” How is Muldoon’s poem similar to and different from the definition? Explain why you think the title works or doesn’t work.
2. Based on the setting of “The Sightseers,” what are the “B-Specials,” and why did they stop Uncle Pat and terrorize him? Why do you think Muldoon juxtaposed the story of the roundabout with Uncle Pat’s story of brutality? What does an “o” have to do with it? What are some other stories of recurring violence?

ACTIVITIES

1. Create your own verbal “symposium,” using parts of well-known aphorisms, proverbs, or folk sayings. Create your own visual “symposium,” using widely different kinds of images from magazines, newspapers, and photographs.
2. After listening to Paul Muldoon read “The Sightseers,” write about a family event you experienced and describe it in relation to a place in your neighborhood or city.

Born in Northern Ireland in 1951, Paul Muldoon was a radio and television producer with the BBC before moving to the United States in the late 1980s. His passion for exact description grows from his awareness that what is apparent often contains a deeper, stranger story. He currently teaches at Princeton University and was recently elected Professor of Poetry at Oxford.

PHOTO: LYNN SAVILLE

The Sightseers

My father and mother, my brother and sister and I, with uncle Pat, our dour best-loved uncle, had set out that Sunday afternoon in July in his broken-down Ford not to visit some graveyard—one died of shingles, one of fever, another’s knees turned to jelly—but the brand-new roundabout at Ballygawley, the first in mid-Ulster.

Uncle Pat was telling us how the B-Specials had stopped him one night somewhere near Ballygawley and smashed his bicycle and made him sing the Sash and curse the Pope of Rome. They held a pistol so hard against his forehead there was still the mark of an O when he got home.

Stanley Kunitz

FOOLING
WITH WORDS
WITH BILL MOYERS

"The remarkable thing that I feel is that despite the aging of the body—despite those aches and pains and all the rest of what happens to one at this stage of a life—the spirit remains young. It's the same spirit I remember living with during my childhood."

PHOTO: LINDA SAVILLE

Stanley Kunitz welcomed his ninetieth year in 1995 with a new collection of luminous, life-affirming poems titled Passing Through. Exceptionally generous and encouraging to younger artists, Stanley Kunitz has received nearly every honor our culture can bestow upon a poet. He and his wife summer in Provincetown, Massachusetts, and winter in New York City.

The Portrait

My mother never forgave my father for killing himself, especially at such an awkward time and in a public park, that spring
when I was waiting to be born.
She locked his name
in her deepest cabinet and would not let him out,
though I could hear him thumping.
When I came down from the attic with the pastel portrait in my hand of a long-lipped stranger with a brave moustache and deep brown level eyes, she ripped it into shreds without a single word and slapped me hard.
In my sixty-fourth year
I can feel my cheek still burning.

The Round

Light splashed this morning on the shell-pink anemones swaying on their tall stems; down blue-spiked veronica light flowed in rivulets over the humps of the honeybees;
this morning I saw light kiss the silk of the roses in their second flowering, my late bloomers flushed with their brandy.
A curious gladness shook me.

So I have shut the doors of my house,
so I have trudged downstairs to my cell,
so I am sitting in semi-dark hunched over my desk with nothing for a view to tempt me
but a bloated compost heap, steamy old stinkpile,
under my window;
and I pick my notebook up and I start to read aloud
the still-wet words I scribbled on the blotted page:
"Light splashed . . ."

I can scarcely wait till tomorrow when a new life begins for me,
as it does each day,
as it does each day.

When did you last notice that
"Light splashed this morning"?

Stanley Kunitz

Halley's Comet

Miss Murphy in first grade wrote its name in chalk across the board and told us it was roaring down the stormtracks of the Milky Way at frightful speed and if it wandered off its course and smashed into the earth there'd be no school tomorrow.
A red-bearded preacher from the hills with a wild look in his eyes stood in the public square at the playground's edge proclaiming he was sent by God to save every one of us, even the little children.
"Repent, ye sinners!" he shouted, waving his hand-lettered sign.
At supper I felt sad to think that it was probably the last meal I'd share with my mother and my sisters; but I felt excited too
and scarcely touched my plate.
So mother scolded me and sent me early to my room.
The whole family's asleep except for me. They never heard me steal into the stairwell hall and climb the ladder to the fresh night air.

Look for me, Father, on the roof of the red brick building at the foot of Green Street—
that's where we live, you know, on the top floor.
I'm the boy in the white flannel gown sprawled on this coarse gravel bed searching the starry sky, waiting for the world to end.

QUESTIONS

1. Why does the poet in "The Round" refer to his room as a "cell"? Why do you think he arranged his room downstairs, with his desk offering nothing for a view except "a bloated compost heap"?
2. Why doesn't "The Round" start in the poet's "cell"?
3. How does the poet of "The Round" help a new life to begin for himself each day?
4. Both "Halley's Comet" and "The Portrait" recall childhood memories. Which do you think is the earlier memory? Which the more private memory? Which the more disturbing memory?

ACTIVITIES

1. Stanley Kunitz wrote "Halley's Comet" on the occasion of the comet's second pass by our planet during his lifetime. Find out what you can about Halley's Comet, especially the popular response to those appearances. Write ten lines that connect a major natural event that you have experienced or know about with something in your life.
2. Arrange a choral reading of "The Round" as a musical "round." Assign each of its three stanzas to a different group of readers. Let each group practice separately, repeating the stanza assigned. Then combine the groups by experimenting with ways of layering the stanzas, while keeping them all going at once.

Kurtis Lamkin

FOOLING
WITH WORDS
WITH BILL MOYERS

"The kora talks, for real. That's why when Africans were brought here all African instruments were banned from the United States—because they could talk."

Kurtis Lamkin accompanies his oral praise poems on the kora, a twenty-one-stringed West African harp-lute used by Djelis (griots, troubadours). His poems explore the counterpoint between the fixed meaning of words and the raw sounds that emerge from and dissolve into feeling. A native of Philadelphia, he lives with his family in Charleston, South Carolina.

jump mama

pretty summer day grammama sittin on her porch easy rockin her grandbaby in her wide lap ol men sittin in their lincoln tastin and talkin and talkin and tastin young boys on the corner milkin a yak yak wild hands baggy pants young girls halfway up the block jumpin that double dutch singin their song kenny kana paula be on time
cause school begins
at a quarter to nine jump one two three and aaaaaah. . .

round the corner comes this young woman draggin herself heavy home from work she sees the young boys sees the old men
but when she sees the girls she just starts smilin she says let me get a little bit of that they say you can't jump
you too old

why they say that o, why they say that she says tanya you hold my work bag chaniqua come over here girl i want you to hold my handbag josie could you hold my grocery bag please

kebè take my purse
she starts bobbin her head, jackin her arms tryin to catch the rhythm of the ropes and when she jumps inside those turning loops the girls crowd her sing their song

kenny kana paula
be on time

cause school begins
at a quarter to nine

jump one two three and aaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaah she jumps on one leg—aaaaah she dances sassy saucy—aaaaah jump for the girls mama jump for the stars mama jump for the young boys sayin jump mama! jump mama!

jump for the old woman sayin—aww, go head baby and what the young girls say what the young girls say aaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaaah

How do you "shake the snake / that coils around our humble lives"?

the million man march

we do right
we do wrong
we do time overtime
we do what it takes to shake the snake that coils around our humble lives whatever we can do we do

we do lunch
we do meetings
we do fundraisers we do marches we send a million men to carry peace to the heart of a cold cold nation some say we don't count
we do
we always do

suppose there's a god who thinks that we are god who loves us so deeply she followed us here we work so hard every trick looks like a miracle and then we name the trickster god if there is a god
who thinks that we are god
do we hear her prayer do we?

in the deep dark hour
when we are all alone
what is that sound what is that prayer what is this faith
we do

QUESTIONS

1. Kurtis Lamkin's performances often vary considerably from the printed texts of his poems. How might the context of each performance figure in these variations? Would you regard the printed or the performed version as primary? Why?
2. If the kora can talk, what do you hear it saying in Kurtis Lamkin's performance of "the million man march"?
3. In what ways could our nation be seen as "a cold cold nation"?
4. In what ways does "jump mama" honor the spirit of community?

ACTIVITIES

1. Review the performances of Coleman Barks, Amiri Baraka, and Kurtis Lamkin, paying attention to how each uses a rhythmic, musical background. Apply what you have learned as you perform poems—by these poets or by others—over a rhythmic, musical background.
2. With a group of others, research the Million Man March. Why did it occur? Why was it controversial? How did others who attended respond to it? Compare your findings to Kurtis Lamkin's poem. Discuss your findings with your research group.
3. Find an instrument that "talks, for real" to you, then read a poem (perhaps one of your own) to its sound.
4. Use a childhood rhyme or game to start a poem.

Shirley Geok-lin Lim

FOOLING
WITH WORDS
WITH BILL MOYERS

"I started writing when I was about nine. I loved the idea of going into a space where there is language which is yours, which is completely private, and which you can do anything with—you can curse someone you cannot curse otherwise, you can create a space of beauty when all around you there is poverty and deprivation. The act of writing poems is the act that has centered me all my life."

Shirley Geok-lin Lim, born in the historic British colony of Malacca, writes from her Chinese-Malaysian heritage and the landscape of the United States, of which she is now a citizen. Her books of poetry have received the Commonwealth Poetry Prize and the American Book Award. She is professor of English and Women's Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara, and is currently on leave as Chair Professor of English at the University of Hong Kong.

PHOTO: LYNN SAVILLE

Riding into California

If you come to a land with no ancestors to bless you, you have to be your own ancestor. The veterans in the mobile home park don't want to be there. It isn't easy.
Oil rigs litter the land like giant frozen birds.
Ghosts welcome us to a new life, and an immigrant without home ghosts cannot believe the land is real. So you're grateful for familiarity, and Bruce Lee becomes your hero. Coming into Fullerton, everyone waiting at the station is white.
The good thing about being Chinese on Amtrack is no one sits next to you. The bad thing is you sit alone all the way to Irvine.

What ghosts have welcomed you to a new life?

Shirley Geok-lin Lim

Pantoun for Chinese Women

"At present, the phenomena of butchering, drowning and leaving to die female infants have been very serious."
(The People's Daily, Peking, March 3rd, 1983)

They say a child with two mouths is no good.
In the slippery wet, a hollow space,
Smooth, gumming, echoing wide for food.
No wonder my man is not here at his place.

In the slippery wet, a hollow space,
A slit narrowly sheathed within its hood.
No wonder my man is not here at his place:
He is digging for the dragon jar of soot.

That slit narrowly sheathed within its hood!
His mother, squatting, coughs by the fire's blaze
While he digs for the dragon jar of soot.
We had saved ashes for a hundred days.

His mother, squatting, coughs by the fire's blaze.
The child kicks against me mewling like a flute.
We had saved ashes for a hundred days.
Knowing, if the time came, that we would.

The child kicks against me crying like a flute
Through its two weak mouths. His mother prays Knowing when the time comes that we would,
For broken clay is never set in glaze.

Through her two weak mouths his mother prays.
She will not pluck the rooster nor serve its blood,
For broken clay is never set in glaze:
Women are made of river sand and wood.

She will not pluck the rooster nor serve its blood.
My husband frowns, pretending in his haste
Women are made of river sand and wood.
Milk soaks the bedding. I cannot bear the waste.

My husband frowns, pretending in his haste.
Oh clean the girl, dress her in ashy soot!
Milks soaks our bedding, I cannot bear the waste.
They say a child with two mouths is no good.

QUESTIONS

1. Shirley Geok-lin Lim writes that "you have to be your own ancestor," while Lucille Clifton writes that she grew up with "no model." How are these two women's statements and the experiences they describe similar? Different?
2. Study Shirley Geok-lin Lim's pantoun and then explain how to write one. Why do you think Shirley Geok-lin Lim chose this form to talk about Chinese women? What happens when you hear a line the second time? For what subject or group would you like to write a pantoun?
3. How does the epigraph from the newspaper aid or distract you in your appreciation of "Pantoun for Chinese Women"?

ACTIVITIES

1. Create a work for a group that suffers oppression. Your work might be a poem (such as a pantoun), a dance, a film, a photo essay, a song, or any other form of expression. Explain whom the work is for and why you made it.
2. Suppose you've come to a country or planet where no one like you has been before. "You have to be your own ancestor," as Shirley Geok-lin Lim says. Write a story or narrative poem describing how you make yourself feel at home. Describe some of the things that are challenging and some of the things that are enjoyable.

Sharon Olds

.....
"There is something exciting to me about writing about something that I haven't written about before and that maybe I haven't read a lot of poems about. . . . When I grew up there were so few poems about women from a woman's point of view, so few poems about children from a child's point of view."

The Clasp

She was four, he was one, it was raining, we had colds, we had been in the apartment two weeks straight, I grabbed her to keep her from shoving him over on his face, again, and when I had her wrist in my grasp I compressed it, fiercely, for a couple of seconds, to make an impression on her, to hurt her, our beloved firstborn, I even almost savored the stinging sensation of the squeezing, the expression, into her, of my anger, "Never, never, again," the righteous chant accompanying the clasp. It happened very fast—grab, crush, crush, crush, release—and at the first extra force, she swung her head, as if checking who this was, and looked at me, and saw me—yes, this was her mom, her mom was doing this. Her dark, deeply open eyes took me in, she knew me, in the shock of the moment she learned me. This was her mother, one of the two whom she most loved, the two who loved her most, near the source of love was this.

"The Clasp" (copyright © Sharon Olds) first appeared in The American Poetry Review.

FOOLING WITH WORDS WITH BILL MOYERS

QUESTIONS

1. How would you describe the family presented in the "The Clasp"? How is the daughter like or unlike her mother?
2. How does the information provided in the first two lines of "The Clasp" affect your response to the central event in the poem? What about the information provided in the third and fourth lines?
3. How does "The Clasp" introduce the poem differently from, say, "The Grab"?

ACTIVITIES

1. With one or two others, read "The Clasp" aloud, listening to what different readers emphasize and paying particular attention to the contrast between how each naturally reads the "righteous chant" and the lines that follow it.
2. With a small group, act out Sharon Olds's "The Clasp" and Stanley Kunitz's "The Portrait." Discuss which was more challenging to act out. Discuss which was more shocking to experience.

.....
Born in San Francisco in 1942, Sharon Olds was raised as a "hellfire Calvinist" in Berkeley, California. Her work has been praised for its courage, emotional power, and extraordinary physicality. She teaches in the Graduate Creative Writing Program at New York University and is the State Poet of New York from 1998-2000.

PHOTO: LYNN SAVILLE

What "in the shock of the moment" have you seen "near the source of love"?

Poem Subjects and Themes

Poems from FOOLING WITH WORDS WITH BILL MOYERS can be mixed and matched according to the following subjects and themes—or you can create your own connections. Here are a few of the possibilities.

FOOLING WITH WORDS
WITH BILL MOYERS

POEMS OF CHILDHOOD

Paul Muldoon, "The Sightseers"
Kurtis Lamkin, "jump mama"
Stanley Kunitz, "Halley's Comet"
Stanley Kunitz, "The Portrait"

POEMS OF ANIMALS

Mark Doty, "New Dog"
Mark Doty, "Golden Retrievals"
Jane Hirshfield, "The Envoy"
Deborah Garrison, "Please Fire Me"
Robert Pinsky, "The Want Bone"

POEMS OF FAMILY LIFE

Lucille Clifton, "oh absalom my son my son"
Deborah Garrison, "Father, R.I.P., Sums Me Up at Twenty-Three"
Paul Muldoon, "The Sightseers"
Robert Pinsky, "To Television"
Stanley Kunitz, "Halley's Comet"
Stanley Kunitz, "The Portrait"
Sharon Olds, "The Clasp"

POEMS OF SURVIVAL

Lucille Clifton, "won't you celebrate with me"
Shirley Geok-lin Lim, "Riding into California"
Amiri Baraka, "Wise I"
Lorna Dee Cervantes, "Poet's Progress"
Stanley Kunitz, "The Round"
Stanley Kunitz, "Halley's Comet"
Robert Pinsky, "The Want Bone"
Mark Doty, "New Dog"

POEMS OF COMMUNITY

Mark Doty, "Messiah (Christmas Portions)"
Stanley Kunitz, "Halley's Comet"
Kurtis Lamkin, "jump mama"

POEMS OF WORK

Deborah Garrison, "Please Fire Me"
Coleman Barks/Rumi, "Jars of Springwater"
Coleman Barks/Rumi, "Today, like every other day"
Stanley Kunitz, "The Round"
Amiri Baraka, "Wise, Why's, Y'z (Africa Section)"

POEMS OF CULTURAL DIVERSITY

Lucille Clifton, "won't you celebrate with me"
Marge Piercy, "The chuppah"
Shirley Geok-lin Lim, "Pantoun for Chinese Women"
Shirley Geok-lin Lim, "Riding into California"
Paul Muldoon, "The Sightseers"
Lorna Dee Cervantes, "Poet's Progress"
Amiri Baraka, "Wise, Why's, Y'z (Africa Section)"
Amiri Baraka, "Wise I"
Kurtis Lamkin, "the million man march"

POEMS OF WOMEN'S RIGHTS

Lucille Clifton, "won't you celebrate with me"
Marge Piercy, "What are big girls made of?"
Deborah Garrison, "Please Fire Me"
Shirley Geok-lin Lim, "Pantoun for Chinese Women"
Jane Hirshfield, "The Poet"

POEMS OF POLITICS AND HISTORY

Paul Muldoon, "The Sightseers"
Shirley Geok-lin Lim, "Pantoun for Chinese Women"
Shirley Geok-lin Lim, "Riding into California"
Amiri Baraka, "Monday in B Flat"
Amiri Baraka, "Wise, Why's, Y'z (Africa Section)"
Amiri Baraka, "Wise I"
Kurtis Lamkin, "the million man march"

POEMS OF MUSIC AND DANCE

Mark Doty, "Messiah (Christmas Portions)"
Coleman Barks/Rumi, "Where Everything Is Music"
Coleman Barks/Rumi, "Today, like every other day"
Kurtis Lamkin, "jump mama"
Amiri Baraka, "Wise I"

POEMS OF WORDPLAY

Paul Muldoon, "Symposium"
Robert Pinsky, "ABC"
Mark Doty, "Golden Retrievals"

POEMS OF CONSCIOUSNESS

Mark Doty, "Golden Retrievals"
Coleman Barks/Rumi, "Jars of Springwater"
Coleman Barks/Rumi, "Where Everything Is Music"

POEMS OF POETS AND POETRY

Coleman Barks/Rumi, "Today, like every other day"
Coleman Barks/Rumi, "Where Everything is Music"
Lorna Dee Cervantes, "Poet's Progress"
Jane Hirshfield, "The Poet"
Jane Hirshfield, "The Envoy"
Stanley Kunitz, "The Round"
Robert Pinsky, "If You Could Write One Great Poem"

POEMS OF FAITH AND SKEPTICISM

Lucille Clifton, "oh absalom my son my son"
Mark Doty, "Messiah (Christmas Portions)"
Stanley Kunitz, "Halley's Comet"
Amiri Baraka, "Monday in B Flat"
Coleman Barks/Rumi, "Where Everything Is Music"
Coleman Barks/Rumi, "Today, like every other day"
Kurtis Lamkin, "the million man march"

Marge Piercy

FOOLING
WITH WORDS
WITH BILL MOYERS

"When I first found poetry that spoke to me—a street kid from Detroit, from a poor family—it was validation that I wasn't crazy, wasn't bizarre, wasn't totally nutty. There were other people who felt the way I felt."

PHOTO: LYNN SAVILLE

Marge Piercy was born in a working-class family in Detroit and attended the University of Michigan on scholarship. She is the author of fifteen volumes of poetry and sixteen novels, in genre as diverse as historical fiction, science fiction, contemporary thrillers, and family sagas. Her themes encompass social justice for men and women, nature and spirituality, especially the "lunar side" of Judaism.

The chuppah

The chuppah stands on four poles.
The home has its four corners.
The chuppah stands on four poles.
The marriage stands on four legs.
Four points loose the winds that blow on the walls of the house,
the south wind that brings the warm rain,
the east wind that brings the cold rain,
the north wind that brings the cold sun and the snow, the long west wind bringing the weather off the far plains.

Here we live open to the seasons.
Here the winds caress and cuff us contrary and fierce as bears.
Here the winds are caught and snarling in the pines, a cat in a net clawing breaking twigs to fight loose.
Here the winds brush our faces soft in the morning as feathers that float down from a dove's breast.

Here the moon sails up out of the ocean dripping like a just washed apple.
Here the sun wakes us like a baby.
Therefore the chuppah has no sides.

It is not a box.
It is not a coffin.
It is not a dead end.
Therefore the chuppah has no walls.
We have made a home together
open to the weather of our time.
We are mills that turn in the winds of struggle converting fierce energy into bread.

The canopy is the cloth of our table where we share fruit and vegetables of our labor, where our care for the earth comes back and we take its body in ours.

The canopy is the cover of our bed where our bodies open their portals wide, where we eat and drink the blood of our love, where the skin shines red as a swallowed sunrise and we burn in one furnace of joy molten as steel and the dream is flesh and flower.

O my love O my love we dance under the chuppah standing over us like an animal on its four legs, like a table on which we set our love as a feast, like a tent under which we work not safe but no longer solitary in the searing heat of our time.

"Why should we want to live inside ads?"

Marge Piercy

from What are big girls made of?

The construction of a woman:
a woman is not made of flesh of bone and sinew
belly and breasts, elbows and liver and toe.
She is manufactured like a sports sedan.
She is retooled, refitted and redesigned every decade.

...

Look at pictures in French fashion magazines of the 18th century: century of the ultimate lady fantasy wrought of silk and corseting.
Paniers bring her hips out three feet each way, while the waist is pinched and the belly flattened under wood.
The breasts are stuffed up and out offered like apples in a bowl.
The tiny foot is encased in a slipper never meant for walking.
On top is a grandiose headache:
hair like a museum piece, daily ornamented with ribbons, vases, grottoes, mountains, frigates in full sail, balloons, baboons, the fancy of a hairdresser turned loose.
The hats were rococo wedding cakes that would dim the Las Vegas strip.
Here is a woman forced into shape rigid exoskeleton torturing flesh:
a woman made of pain.

How superior we are now: see the modern woman thin as a blade of scissors.
She runs on a treadmill every morning, fits herself into machines of weights and pulleys to heave and grunt, an image in her mind she can never approximate, a body of rosy glass that never wrinkles, never grows, never fades. She sits at the table closing her eyes to food hungry, always hungry:
a woman made of pain.

...

If only we could like each other raw.
If only we could love ourselves like healthy babies burbling in our arms.
If only we were not programmed and reprogrammed to need what is sold us.
Why should we want to live inside ads?
Why should we want to scourge our softness to straight lines like a Mondrian painting?
Why should we punish each other with scorn
as if to have a large ass were worse than being greedy or mean?

When will women not be compelled to view their bodies as science projects, gardens to be weeded,
dogs to be trained?
When will a woman cease to be made of pain?

QUESTIONS

1. A chuppah is a canopy held up by four people in a Jewish wedding. Tradition calls for the bride and groom to stand under the chuppah during the ceremony. How does Piercy use the chuppah as a symbol in her poem? Why do you think traditions and symbols are important to a culture?
2. Near the end of "What are big girls made of?" Marge Piercy writes, "If only we could like each other raw. / If only we could love ourselves / like healthy babies burbling in our arms." What messages do you think society gives teenagers about how they should look? What happens to people who take those messages too seriously?

ACTIVITIES

1. A chuppah is a physical object that has symbolic meanings. Choose a physical object you find interesting—it could be something unique to your culture, or it could be a personal item. Describe how that object has meaning in your experience or in someone else's experience.
2. Marge Piercy says, "Observing the contradictions of my mother's life taught me a lot about women's lives." What life have you observed closely? What has it taught you? In writing, dance, or illustration, express what you've learned.
3. Research a particular style of clothing or a particular idea about beauty in history or in other cultures. What do you think that style or idea implies about the way people thought of themselves? How was the style or idea different for men and for women? Share your findings in any format you like.

Robert Pinsky

FOOLING
WITH WORDS
WITH BILL MOYERS

"Poetry is the art of one human voice. Without denigrating art on a mass scale—I love my TV, my computer, and my VCR—there's a craving and a satisfaction available in an art that in its nature is on an individual scale."

The current U.S. Poet Laureate and the first to serve for more than two years, Robert Pinsky grew up in Long Branch, New Jersey. His Favorite Poem Archive will gather a database describing what poetry means to us, as a nation, at the close of the twentieth century. He teaches at Boston University.

To Television

Not a "window on the world"
But as we call you,
A box a tube

Terrarium of dreams and wonders.
Coffer of shades, ordained Cotillion of phosphors
Or liquid crystal

Homey miracle, tub
Of acquiescence, vein of defiance.
Your patron in the pantheon would be Hermes

Raster dance,
Quick one, little thief, escort
Of the dying and comfort of the sick,

In a blue glow my father and little sister sat
Snuggled in one chair watching you
Their wife and mother was sick in the head
I scorned you and them as I scorned so much

Now I like you best in a hotel room,
Maybe minutes
Before I have to face an audience: behind
The doors of the armoire, box
Within a box—Tom & Jerry, or also brilliant And reassuring, Oprah Winfrey.

Thank you, for I watched, I watched Sid Caesar speaking French and Japanese not Through knowledge but imagination,
His quickness, and Thank you, I watched live
Jackie Robinson stealing

Home, the image—O strung shell—enduring Fleeter than light like these words we Remember in: they too are winged
At the helmet and ankles.

PHOTO: LYNN SAVILLE

ABC

Any body can die, evidently. Few Go happily, irradiating joy,

Knowledge, love. Most Need oblivion, painkillers, Quickest respite.

Sweet time unafflicted,
Various world:

X = your zenith.

What has television's quickness given to you?
Taken from you?

Robert Pinsky

If You Could Write One Great Poem, What Would You Want It To Be About?

(Asked of four student poets at the Illinois Schools for the Deaf and Visually Impaired)

Fire: because it is quick, and can destroy.
Music: place where anger has its place.
Romantic Love—the cold or stupid ask why.
Sign: that it is a language, full of grace,

That it is visible, invisible, dark and clear,
That it is loud and noiseless and is contained Inside a body and explodes in air
Out of a body to conquer from the mind.

.....

The Want Bone

The tongue of the waves tolled in the earth's bell.
Blue rippled and soaked in the fire of blue.
The dried mouthbones of a shark in the hot swale
Gaped on nothing but sand on either side.

The bone tasted of nothing and smelled of nothing.
A scalded toothless harp, uncrushed, unstrung.
The joined arcs made the shape of birth and craving
And the welded-open shape kept mouthing O.

Ossified cords held the corners together
In groined spirals pleated like a summer dress.
But where was the limber grin, the gash of pleasure?
Infinitesimal mouths bore it away.

The beach scrubbed and etched and pickled it clean.
But O I love you it sings, my little my country
My food my parent my child I want you my own
My flower my fin my life my lightness my O.

"To Television" by Robert Pinsky, © 1998 by Robert Pinsky. "ABC" by Robert Pinsky, © 1999 by Robert Pinsky. Reprinted by permission of Robert Pinsky.
"The Want Bone" from THE WANT BONE by Robert Pinsky, © 1990 by Robert Pinsky. Reprinted by permission of the Ecco Press.
"If You Could Write One Great Poem, What Would You Want It To Be About?" from THE FIGURED WHEEL by Robert Pinsky, © 1996 by Robert Pinsky. Reprinted by permission of the Noonday Press.

QUESTIONS

1. The specific language describing Sid Caesar and Jackie Robinson in "To Television" gives us important information about each and develops our understanding of Hermes, "Quick one, little thief." According to this poem, what qualities link Caesar, Robinson, and Hermes?
2. Hermes—a Greek messenger god—is also described in "To Television" as "escort / Of the dying and comfort of the sick." How does television perform these functions in this poem?
3. The title "ABC" seems to imply an elementary, predictable experience. In what ways does the poem fulfill or evade this implication?
4. What value would you give to X in "X=your zenith"?

ACTIVITIES

1. Use the alphabet to write a series of stories, sketches, or poems of your own. In your first effort, let the sequence of the alphabet determine every third word. In your second, every other word. In your third, every word.
2. With a group, try different readings of "ABC." Make notes of what you notice in each reading. Discuss what your group could now offer to increase anyone's pleasure in hearing and speaking this poem.
3. Create your own list of metaphors for television or some other object or institution—radio, computer, automobile, shopping mall, school, etc.—that has both personal and social significance.
4. Draw the whole scene described in "To Television."

MARGE PIERCY

"Poetry is very diverse. Different poets speak to different people. Different poets strike different chords. We all belong to a great endeavor, and the more good poets there are, the more people will read poetry."

COLEMAN BARKS

"When I was about twelve I kept a little black notebook and wrote down words that I loved the taste of, like 'azalea' or, for some reason, 'halcyon,' the bird that calms the waters with its wings, and other odd words, and images too."

LORNA DEE CERVANTES

"They didn't teach poetry in the barrio school. I thought poems were songs for people with bad voices, and my brother, a musician, always assured me that's what I had. So I just always wrote poetry. I don't think there was a time in my life when poetry wasn't at the center."

MARK DOTY

"The act of making a poem implies that somebody's listening. So we're reaching toward, imaginatively, another consciousness, another listener."

Remarks
About Being a Poet
and
About Poetry

JANE HIRSHFIELD

"Poetry was the field in which I developed the self I became. . . . We write in order to find out who and what we are."

AMIRI
BARAKA

"You think your stuff is good? See those guys digging a hole in the street there? When they get a minute off to eat a sandwich, go read them a poem. See if you get hit on the head. If you don't get hit on the head, you've got a future."

SHIRLEY GEOK-LIN LIM

"If a poem does not move or give pleasure, then I don't think it really succeeds as art. Isn't it important for us to get pleasure in some way, even in the deepest pain and grief, to survive? Maybe pleasure is the oar that we need not to drown."

LUCILLE CLIFTON

"I am interested in being understood, not admired."

Funding for this guide is provided by the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation.

Thirteen · wnet

450 West 33rd Street
New York, NY 10001

